Hi Dedpool Sorry! But I don't know too much about the Crosman PowerMaster 66 Air rifle, But here's what I think anyway: This problem might be because the PowerMaster is only a smooth-bore so don't expect too much accuracy from it, But I would have thought it might have been a bit more accurate than that at ~10M!

I own both rifles and have to say, i love the Powermaster 66, while the 880 not so much. In the first three months i could easily take headshots on squirrels at 25 yards. But as time went on the accuracy suffered. I have had the Powermaster 66 for seven years and it can still kill a squirrel cleanly with a body shot and still very accurate.

The Powermaster 66 could fire .177 caliber BB's or pellets up to 700+ feet per second, providing I pumped it 10 times. Sometimes the rebel in me pumped it 11 or even 12 times, despite the warnings of the owner's manual not to do so.
