Dog Heaven

Newbery winner Rylant, who debuted as an illustrator with her Everyday board books (1993), offers paintings and text in tribute to "Dog Heaven." Here there are fields to run in, soft beds (made of clouds turned inside out) and "angel children," because "God knows that dogs love children more than anything else in the world."

Dog Heaven: Rylant, Cynthia, Rylant, Cynthia, Rylant ...

Comforting to those who know the pain and grief associated with the loss of a pet, Rylant paints a lovely picture of dog heaven where fields abound, with lots of room to run. God watches from behind a tree as geese honk and dogs chase. Knowing dogs love children, dog heaven is filled with children who play ball and fly kites to the clouds.

Another common argument against the notion that pets go to heaven is that "animals don't have souls." Often, a proponent of this view will not hesitate to say that there are no animals in heaven, for this reason. Again, the Bible isn't exactly clear on that, so the question is not answerable on a strictly scriptural basis.
