The theoretical yield is what you calculate when you do a calculation on paper or before you do a reaction in a lab. The actual yield will always be less than the theoretical yield because no chemical reaction ever reaches 100 percent completion. In a lab setting, there's always some amount of error, whether it's big or small.

In chemistry, the theoretical yield is the maximum amount of product a chemical reaction could create based on chemical equations.In reality, most reactions are not perfectly efficient. If you perform the experiment, you'll end up with a smaller amount, the actual yield.To express the efficiency of a reaction, you can calculate the percent yield using this formula: %yield = (actual yield / theoretical yield) * 100%
