Selected Poems Mark Strand

Mark Strand's poetry speaks volumes even in this thin-ish book of selected poems. It's my favorite of poetry books by living English-speaking writers. His early work reflects influences from Latin Surrealists like Octavio Paz.

Reading NEW SELECTED POEMS by Mark Strand was like watching someone else's life pass before my eyes. They start death-obsessed, or so the plain language read to me, almost but not speaking to the weight of the coming end. Then they grow more surreal and natural at the same time, full of experience and joy.

Mark Strand - Mark Strand Poems - Poem Hunter

Mark Strand was US Poet Laureate between 1990-91 and won the Pulitzer Prize for Blizzard of One in 1998. In this beautiful and philosophical collection, he tells us that nothing we strive for really matters, that everything just comes and goes, like wind, like breath. And what makes life precious are moments of reflection, moments of wonder.

Mark Strand - Poetry Archive

In 1980's Selected Poems, Strand relies on an "ethereal, cumulative effect" to express the idea that "the two fixed points of a man's life are the self and God; both are darkneses, one leading to another." Cole continued.

Mark Strand died just a few months after this COLLECTED POEMS was issued. I remember asking at the bookstore, Isn't Collected Poetry reserved for a posthumous anthology and Selected Poetry for a living poet? And the bookseller showed me a New York Times review which asked the same question. Well, I guess we have our answer.
